Our Mission

Receivables Info was created by Receivables Management industry veterans with a passion for empowering the industry through consistent, engaging, high-quality content. Our mission is to create informative and entertaining content for our highly specialized audience through their preferred channel. We build each of our products to meet the very unique needs of an industry we care deeply about.

Our Founder

Adam Parks is a serial entrepreneur and Past-President of Receivables Management Association International (RMAi) with almost 20 years of experience in the receivables industry. His diverse background includes debt portfolio purchasing, debt sales, consulting, and the development of technology systems, data analytics and portfolio financing.

Adam has held various marketing, operations and compliance positions within the industry, including leadership positions with brokerages, debt buyers, data services providers, industry trade associations and compliance consultants, which have given him a broad set of experiences and deep relationships across the industry. Adam has become a voice for the industry, hosting the Receivables Roundtable podcast and frequently presenting at industry conferences.

As a serial entrepreneur in the receivables industry, Adam has co-founded many organizations in the space and currently holds a variety of positions, including:

- CEO, Branding Arc (receivables marketing)
- Founder, Receivables Info (industry news)
- Past President, Receivables Management Association International (RMAI)

Our Core Audience

Our core audience is focused on financial services professionals in the receivables management, debt collection and credit risk job functions. We grow our audience through social media, live event attendance and engagement with trade associations.
